Amended. A method for detecting malignant and non-malignant tissue abnormalities and lesions of the skin, mucosa, endometrium and urothelium in a patient, comprising administering to said patient an [effection] effective amount of a precursor of protoporphyrin IX in the biosynthetic pathway for heme so as to induce synthesis of protoporphyrin IX preferentially in said abnormalities and lesions, exposing said patient to light having a wavelength within the absorbance spectrum of said [protoprphyrin] protoporphyrin IX to thereby induce fluorescence in said abnormalities or lesions, and detecting said fluorescence.
